MASTER FUND COMMENTARY

Market Review

October brought renewed volatility to global markets, marking a shift from the steady rally that was observed throughout much of the year. Major US indices pulled back, weighed down by muted earnings from mega cap stocks, and rising uncertainties around the US elections and the Fed meeting. Both global equities and bonds declined in October.

The resilient labour market, inflation data and the potential for a Trump presidency drove US Treasury yields higher, with the 2-year and 10-year yields surpassing the 4.0% mark. Fed Chair Powell reiterated that the committee remains patient on rate cuts, emphasising that any adjustment will be data dependent. Meanwhile, the European Central Bank (ECB) cut its benchmark rate by 25bps for the third time this year, in effort to tame price levels. The US dollar also strengthened, supported by a rise in US government bond yields and strong manufacturing data. Commodities were mixed with oil prices fluctuating amid concerns of weakening demand.

Looking forward, we continue to believe elections can create opportunities amid short-term volatility, while our soft-landing macro view points to medium- term outperformance of risk assets.

Fund Positioning

Our portfolio continues to be well-positioned for the current market environment. With the objective to generate a consistent and sustainable income stream, the Signature CIO Conservative fund continues to be positioned as a high-quality portfolio of short duration fixed income, cash, and money market funds.

As of 30 September 2024

Fund Performance

The Signature CIO Conservative Fund posted a negative return in October, as broad declines across major bond markets weighed on performance.

Cash and floating rate notes were key contributors in the portfolio. The spike in US government bond yields proved favourable for the short maturity income assets, which is in line with our expectations.

Sentiment towards EM assets weakened as flows continued to favour DM over EM risk assets. Volatile US rates and persistent USD strength created further headwinds for EM debt.
